Tiziana Vicario

PROCULTHER-NET 2 project manager
Italian Presidency of the Council of Ministers
Civil Protection Department

Specialist in disaster risk reduction and humanitarian aid. With a background in international relations and emergency response, she has worked with NGOs, international organizations, and public administrations across Europe, Africa, Latin America, and the Caribbean region. Throughout her career, Tiziana has gained extensive experience in risk and crisis management in both urban and rural environments, supporting the development of policies and strategies to enhance the resilience of vulnerable communities. She strongly advocates for people-centred approaches, including the safeguarding of cultural heritage at risk.

She has also developed tools to scale and capitalize on best practices, leading participatory processes to identify strategies and recommendations for disaster risk reduction. Her contributions to official institutional documentation have helped inform decision-making and strengthen disaster risk reduction and climate change adaptation capacities across various territorial levels. Since 2019, Tiziana has managed the PROCULTHER initiatives on behalf of the Italian Civil Protection Department and currently oversees the second phase of the PROCULTHER-NET project.
